But for a few bruises and minor cuts caused by broken windshields, the occupants of the cars were unhurt.

The cantata entitled, "Miss Cherry Blossoms," sung by the high school last Friday and Saturday evening at the high school auditorium, was well received by the large audience present each evening. ## Teachers and Pupils Expect to Entertain All Janesville

By MRS. LETHA LUTSCHER.
 One of the most interesting and ambitious efforts of the school year will be seen on April 18 and 19, when Janesville's schools will set before the public in a monster exposition, the daily work of our school boys and girls.

Purpose of Exposition.
 Although the general public readily acknowledges the success of the city's educational system, it does not often have the opportunity to see the aims and accomplishments of the schools set before it in such a way that these efforts, purposes, and results may be appreciated through visualizing them.

The work that Janesville citizens will see on April 18 and 19, will be no exhibit of what can be done under extra pressure, but will be specimens of every day work by all the students. There will be no attempt at display with the expectation of receiving exaggerated appreciation, but a sincere desire to show those interested in Janesville's schools and its boys and girls what they are accomplishing to accomplish in the training for successful men and women and better citizens.

General Plan.
 The exposition will be presented in the gymnasium, hall, and assembly room of the high school from 8 to 5:30 p. m. and from 7 to 9 in the evening of each of the dates mentioned. Miss Edith Sturtevant, an supervisor, is general chairman and has appointed numerous committees.

It is with pleasure that one hears that battles in arms and grandpas, which are welcome. No one need stay at home. A plan is under way for the tots. The kindergarten teachers will have a nursery with sand-piles, toys, and everything to make the young visitors happy. Mother and father can visit the exposition with no care or worry about sleep, tired, little people. No doubt this room is going to be an attractive place for the old as well.

And then—the committees have not forgotten gardens. There will be a "yesterday, today, and tomorrow" booth which is arousing lively curiosity. Some of grandpa's school work will be there. Who knows, but you may be surprised to find some of your own?

Other Features.
 Many citizens may already know about the Parent-Teachers' association booth. Members of this organization will be after all of you. They are working up a lively contest for signatures at their registration booths. If you have children in school, your signature gives them one credit; if not, you count two whole credits.

Guides with arm bands and information just seeking from them, will meet you at the door and keep your attention engaged.

If the guide doesn't keep you thoroughly interested and entertained, the orchestra, which will play in the gymnasium every 15 minutes, will see that your enthusiasm doesn't lag.

Excellent Programs Arranged.
 Don't think that you are to be kept walking from booth to booth all afternoon or evening. Four programs are being arranged, one of which will be given on the afternoon and evening of each of the two days of the exposition. Detailed plans will be published later, but the numbers ready thus far, promise real treats.

There will be dramatizations from the bible and from Shakespeare, plays in French, folk dances by the little people, quartets by the boys, some more by the girls, Indian songs by first graders, glee club music, numbers by kindergarten babies, costume presentations by one school, an operetta by another, and many other interesting things that no one wants to miss.

All this and much more not mentioned, is for every one to enjoy. The school will be host to all of Janesville. Mothers and fathers are not to be the only guests. Every citizen interested in the schools, who wishes to see what the boys and girls are doing through the busy days, will be cordially welcomed, informed, and entertained. No one who wishes to spend a few hours packed full of delightful profit and real pleasure, will forget April 18 and 19.

CORRECTION
 Owing to an error the matter required by the Corrupt Practices Act was left off the advertisement for Percy W. Hall in Saturday evening's Gazette. It should have stated at the heading of the ad as follows: "Political Announcement, written and published authorized by Percy W. Hall, and to be paid for by him at the rate of $50 per inch."

WIFE MARRIED.
 Will H. Fritzke, Edgerton, and Jean Goldie Patterson, Janesville, have applied for a marriage license.

For sale, cakes, pies and all kinds of aprons at Baptist church Tuesday afternoon.

HEAVY BUSINESS IN JUSTICE COURT

The largest week's business in Justice court this year was in the last week of March when 15 cases were settled. Judgment in favor of the plaintiff was ordered in every case to an amount totaling $390.15.

The court Saturday morning settled the case of Robert Lichtfus against Jerry Easton and his son Jerry Easton, farmers of Rock county who, while in partnership, employed Lichtfus as a helper during the thrashing season and to help fill silos. Lichtfus claimed there was still $32.94 owing for his services. The court ordered the partners to pay $16.47 and costs of the action amounting to $16.67. Jerry Easton Jr. was ordered to pay $16 alone for help in thrashing.

Other judgments granted were: Janesville Paper Box company $62.48 against H. O. Clark, city; Dr. Charles Sutherland, $24.95 against Harry Look; C. H. Dull, for groceries, $155.20 against C. H. M. Bostwick and Sons, $11.50 against M. Rybold; Wilcox and Crummer, $18.32, against John Clough; George E. Lemke, $20.18, against J. R. Conley.

REV. F. F. LEWIS IN ATTACK ON LAXITY

Says Laws are Not Enforced
And City is Lacking in Moral Force.

Declaring the laws are not enforced, and that Janesville has a reputation for laxity in the enforcement of the existing laws, Rev. F. F. Lewis last evening delivered an arraignment of civic affairs. In regard to the choice of candidates for the mayor, he expressed himself as a loss, a case of choosing "between the devil and the deep sea."

An investigation, he said, "has been made of the records of all kinds of illicit traffic, and one of the most necessary things in the city today is an enforcement of the existing laws."

In regard to liquor selling and gambling, "an investigation conducted by the ministerial association shows that liquor is still being sold, and the law regulating saloons are not enforced."

"I have been told," said Rev. Mr. Lewis, "I should see that every law on the statute books was strictly enforced, or repealed. The mayor cannot do this. He is at the head of the executive branch of city government, and has power to enforce the laws if he sees fit."

He should know whether the existing laws were worth while, by testing them to the limit, and if they were weak and inefficient I should try and have them changed in their places. "The law against the sale of liquor is one of the most important of the constitution of the United States, and as such is sacred. People selling liquor are outlaws and traitors to their country."

As to a curfew, he noted a statement made by Sheriff Whipple recently that a wave of juvenile delinquency seems to be sweeping over the country. He believes it is largely caused by laxity in enforcement of the existing laws. Other points outlined by Rev. Lewis as things he would undertake, if he were mayor, was to deliver the city from the baneful influence of party politics, and the post office in such haphazard fashion, and also in the program of street paving, which has been at tremendous expense, and apparently without the whim of the administration saw fit.

If Lewis were Mayor, he noted a statement made by Sheriff Whipple recently that a wave of juvenile delinquency seems to be sweeping over the country. He believes it is largely caused by laxity in enforcement of the existing laws. Other points outlined by Rev. Lewis as things he would undertake, if he were mayor, was to deliver the city from the baneful influence of party politics, and the post office in such haphazard fashion, and also in the program of street paving, which has been at tremendous expense, and apparently without the whim of the administration saw fit.

Such a committee, he thought, should be made up of ministers, school officials, and men and women prominent in social welfare work, in the city. They could serve as a volunteer censor board for the moving pictures, which were shown here, leading off in one measure the stream of pollution consisting of bad, vulgar, and sex films which was contaminating the morals of the young people. Men high in standing in the community and church members were owners of these moving picture houses, and he thought they should be brought to see that a higher standard should be maintained in regard to attractions shown, as they were in a large extent responsible to their constituency for what was shown in their houses. Another citizens' committee could do much in solving the recreation problem which is such an important one for every city, as well as some things along the line of health, sanitation and housing which are pressing in upon the city at this time.

The moral and physical standard of the youth raised in the country, was much higher than that brought up in the environment of the city, he noted, and that even in Janesville there was poor housing, and the beginning of violent slums. These conditions should be rectified and a public spirited committee on labor and non-employment which could work sympathetically with the need of the laboring man, would also be of immense advantage, and bring about a better understanding between capital and labor.

An immense amount of volunteer work was done during the war, by people having the good of the nation at heart, and the same efforts in behalf of the ideals of community spirit, he contended, were possible and had been tried out successfully in other cities. Indianapolis was cited as being a place where citizen's committees had worked with great good to the community.

As a prelude to the local application of his address, he emphasized the fact that the cities of America are more misruled than any other branch of the commonwealth. "That we are these cities to ignorant and selfish men who give us the worst municipal government in all the earth. The saloons have held the balance of power in many places, and ignorant, unprincipled men have made a scandal of democracy in the administration of public affairs."

The Holy City, he said, "discusses a background to the Holy City" from the 21st Revelations, where he described a new heaven and a new earth, and a new Jerusalem coming down out of heaven, where justice, love and mercy rules, and tears are wiped away. This vision of a redeemed city was also emphasized by an illustrated song, "The Holy City," sung by Miss Della Stang, with pictures thrown on the screen. The men's chorus, directed by Florence Snyder, also sang several selections, and led in the singing of several of the old time favorites whose

HARDING IS RUSHED ON "AT HOME" DAY

[By Associated Press.]
Washington—President Harding's policy of receiving callers on only 5 days a week resulted Monday in the heaviest engagement lists since he entered the White House. Forty names were on the appointment schedule which covered the day from 9:45 a. m. to 4 p. m. Most of the callers were to bring delegations with them to pay respects to the chief executive and one of the eight delegations numbered 45 persons.

Robbers Obtain $2,300 in Early Morning Operations

Chicago—Robbers obtained $2,300 in two early morning operations here Monday. Stanley Yuska, a saloon keeper, was relieved of $1,300 by holdup men while the Chicago Grocery company lost $1,000 when their building was entered and the safe cracked.

Words were shown on the screen. A large audience, many of them strangers, was present.

[By Associated Press.]
Madison—Last night in the legislature was quiet with but a few interruptions of a sensational nature, drawing attention from the routine business of the session. Division of the senate against the governor, and the veto of the assembly against Glenn Turner, former assemblyman, were the striking developments. Governor Blaine is pressing his contention that the appointment of Turner as a member of the conservation commission was not made in violation of the statute which provides that not more than two members of the board shall be of the same political party. His reappointment of Mr. Webster in the face of the senate refusal to confirm by a vote of 15 to 10 will be considered on April 14.

Another division arose over the legal status of the Langro bill creating a municipal court in Eau Claire county, which the senate decided had become law despite the governor's veto. It is not yet known whether the six day period allowed him to express disapproval.

In this action the decision of Attorney General William Morgan was upheld, a fact that the governor's counsel, M. H. O'Brien, disregarded by a vote of 12 to 13.

The assembly is expected to reverse its attitude toward Turner who has been denied the privileges of the floor as an ex-member. He was charged with attempting to intimidate Biglow Friday evening at their home. The following program was given: Music, Mrs. Harry Piper; reading, Mrs. L. Wood; play, "The Blind Man," by Edmund Gosse; Irish recitation, Mrs. Edmund Gosse; and the Misses Edith Smith, Miss Gile, and Laura Brown; reading, Josephine Freligh; "Who is Who," contest, Mrs. Wood; a Rector and Miss Della Wood. The hostesses served refreshments, and a silver offering was taken for the benefit of the public library. The meeting of the Friendly Circle class of the M. E. Sunday school entertained the members of the young men's class Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Kell. A large number were present and the evening was spent in stunts and games, after which refreshments were served.

Miss Mary Bell entertained the members of her Sunday school class from 8 o'clock Friday evening at her home. A supper was served at 6 o'clock, after which games were played. The women of the Kiwanis club met at the home of Mrs. L. Thompson, a former Blaine pastor, officiated. Besides the women, there were several men and two daughters, an aged mother, brother and sister. Miss Ruth Woods of the Methodist Deaconess home, Chicago, spent Thursday and Friday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Bert Krumpholtz, and her sister, Mrs. John Byrne. Miss Ruth Potter, William Cockerill and Roy Krantz, who were in the city on business, attended a Standard Bearers convention. William Cockerill was on the program, giving a toast on gasoline. Miss Alice Gibson, Grand Rapids, Mich., spent the week with relatives in town. Mrs. Edward Stenstrom and mother, Mrs. H. P. Larson, Rockford, spent Friday afternoon in Janesville. Mrs. William Krantz and children spent Saturday in Whitewater with Mrs. Krantz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Dunbar. Mrs. Charles Walzer, Eugene, Ill., visited with Mr. and Mrs. W. L. The marketing bill was explained to the assembly on Tuesday evening. It was declared an expenditure of the cutting grants of money down to bed rock. They withdrew the industrial commission bill, which the governor threatened to veto and which would have increased the appropriation for $250,000 to $300,000, according to the expression of the leaders.

April opened with $7,477,500.10 in the general fund and which $1,257,700 was in certificates of indebtedness and $6,220,000.10 in cash, according to statement of Treasurer Henry Johnson. This is the most money the state has had on hand at any one time in its history. The grand total of available funds in the state total reached $10,992,012.91, he said.

The Dahl general income tax bill, increased the rate on incomes in excess of $12,000 to 8 per cent, removing the personal property offset, the secrecy clause, and distributing the revenue derived from the tax, will be considered by the assembly tax committee on Thursday of next week. Assembly action in rejecting the bill proposals for removal of the personal property offset, to the income tax is expected to hold in consideration of the Dahl bill. The measure, short of the personal property feature and of the provision affecting the secrecy clause is said to be considered by the assembly tax committee on Thursday of next week.

The concerted opposition which was shown to the state's proposals and the personal property offset move is not expected toward the Dahl bill, which is the most radical of the proposed tax measures.

Practically the only other big hearing of the week is expected over consideration of the Johnson bill relating to representation on the board of directors of normal schools and the university. The proposal, if passed, would give Governor Blaine authority to appoint completely new boards on July 1 of this year.

ARCHBISHOP TALKS ON CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

stand what a religious education means to our children.

The conviction is growing strongly that the Catholics are un-American."

The invocation was held at St. Patrick's church at 3 o'clock, presided by the cross and candle-bearing and a vested choir, 1,000 people marched through the school. The choir was followed by 250 school children, 500 women and 1,000 men. The archbishop, with his party of Catholic dignitaries and assisted by Dean J. P. Ryan and Rev. Charles Olson. The dedication service was given in Latin by Archbishop Messenger.

New Dining Hall Used.
The large dining hall in the basement of the new school building was used for the first time in the evening, following the services at the church. Supper was served from 5 o'clock until 7:30, more than 800 people being seated.

Soon after 8 o'clock, with between 600 and 700 people seated in the auditorium, the evening program was started with a selection by the members of the parish on building such a fine building and urged them to continue their good work, as the building of the school is only the first step.

The Chamber of Commerce was represented by Manager L. O. Holman, who said that the people of the church had fulfilled a duty to their children in building the school and that it would be a great aid to making them good citizens. He said that the moral or religious side of education is too often overlooked in the country's schools.

Father William Mahoney, a former member of the clergy here, spoke a few words.

Musical numbers throughout the program were given by Edmund Mrs. J. W. Heffron and the orchestra. The program was closed with the singing of "America" by the audience.

Seventeen priests took part in the dedication services as follows: Most Rev. Archbishop S. G. Messmer, officiating prelate; Rev. J. E. Harlin, St. Mary's church, Janesville; St. Patrick's, Janesville, master of ceremonies; Rev. R. J. Roche, Milton, Ill.; Rev. M. J. Condon, Milwaukee; Rev. J. E. Flannery, Beloit; Rev. George J. Hegeman, Beloit; Rev. Thomas

Major T. E. Welsh spoke of the early history of the convent and the founders of the church. He told how the school was built, and how the members of the parish helped in the construction. He told of the early days there, he himself having received his early education in the school.

Archbishop Messenger in his address spoke of the conflict between public and parochial schools.

"Religion is needed in the training of the child and must be in the home while the child is in school. Catholics are not opposed to the public schools, but we feel that one should have a religious education which will furnish this. We do not wish for any conflict with the city schools and I am sure they will cooperate to the best advantage."

The main address of the evening was given by Rev. Robert B. Condon, J. C. Crose, who spoke of the great advantage of the parochial schools and how necessary they are for the growth of civilization.

"Education is the bringing forth of the physical, intellectual and moral side of every person and as this becomes higher, civilization and progress. Religion is the basis of all. All that is good comes from the Catholic schools," he said, asking what would happen to statesmen and government if there were no religion.

Hooper on Program.
State, county and city educators were on the program, also Supt. J. P. Hooper of the School for the Blind, told about the good that came out of the war, saying that people are now turning more to religion than before. He gave figures of the vast amount of uneducated people. He stated that the teaching of religion must be excluded from the public school, and need not be neglected on this account. He said that all the people of the city should be proud to have such a school in the city.

Supp. O. D. Antisdel of the county schools said, "We must look into the future and not deprive the child of his religious training."

Assurance was given by Supt. Frank Jolt of the city schools, that the greatest cooperation possible would be given. He said the public school officials recognize the Catholics' right to start such a school, as it is impossible to teach religion in any but a parochial school.

Supp. J. M. Dorans of the vocational school, complimented the members of the parish on building such a fine building and urged them to continue their good work, as the building of the school is only the first step.

The Chamber of Commerce was represented by Manager L. O. # Oiling the Wheels of the World

GASOLINE is the major product made by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and in the manufacture of this most essential product of petroleum, this Company stands in the lead.

But gasoline is only one of the many products sent to the world with the unqualified guarantee of this organization; for as a manufacturer of lubricants it stands among the leaders.

No service performed by this Company is more important, more essential or more far-reaching than the work it is doing to keep the machinery of the world running smoothly and efficiently.

Of the many lubricating oils and greases sent out under its name, none is more widely known or more universally accepted than those bearing the Polarine brands.

Polarine is a perfect motor oil. It was first introduced to the motoring world in 1908 when 1100 gallons were sold. Year by year the demand has increased until in 1920, 23,979,050 gallons were manufactured and sold to the car owners in the Middle West.

When first introduced there was but one grade of Polarine oil. Now there are four, each designed to meet the need of certain types of engines.

The development of four grades of oil, one of which will correctly lubricate any type or make of internal combustion engine, is but one of the essential services performed by the research department of this Company.

But lubricating motor vehicles is but a small item when the lubricating service of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is considered. Every type of machinery has been studied and an oil or grease perfectly adapted to keep the bearings running smooth and cool has been produced.

From the flying spindles of the loom to the ponderous bearings of the steel roller, each problem presented has been met squarely, fairly and with a deep understanding that to meet its needs was not only good business, but was essential if the Company was to live up to the ideals of service to which it is committed.

While lubricating the wheels of the world is highly essential, it is but one of the many branches of service which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is organized to perform.

In every department of its complex and highly specialized business, the same ideals of thoroughness, integrity and efficiency are insisted upon. The underlying principle in all is to give a maximum of service at a minimum of expense.

RESPONSIBILITY OF CITIZENSHIP ON ELECTION DAY.

Tuesday, April 5, is election day in Janesville. Strange to say a local election causes more interest and stirs up far more feeling than a national or state contest. That is natural, for we know that the municipal election has to do with the officers who will administer the affairs, all of which touch us intimately and personally. It is also an evidence of what we feel regarding our city and our home. We want the very best there is in administration. We require much that we are really unwilling to pay for. Our very system of city government invites this condition. But it also emphasizes the responsibility of citizenship at this time. There is to be a meeting of the stockholders of Janesville tomorrow. It will last from morning to night. It gives every man and woman in the city, who is a stockholder, an opportunity to say how the corporation will be officered in the coming two years. If the citizen stockholders fail to exercise a right granted hereafter, it is the great paramount duty of all women and men, eligible to vote, to go to the polls Tuesday and register a selection for official management of the city.

To do less is to avoid a plain duty. We must not let the city go backward. We must not let the city fall in its program of forward looking. We are headed toward the future with a spirit of progress that is indomitable. In making the selection for officers Tuesday this great point ought to be uppermost in the mind of every person. Mere personal antagonism, or small prejudices should not dominate. The big thing for the city as a whole—the best thing for the people as a body—these are the responsible items that should animate the citizen stockholder in making the new official roster for the corporation of the city of Janesville.

The board of aldermen is important, the school board is important, the county board membership is vitally important and it is important that the selection of the mayor should register the full majority voice of the people. Therefore it is a responsibility of more than usual moment that rests upon the citizens of Janesville Tuesday.

No matter what else you do go to the polls and vote.

There will be little change in the trousers this spring says a fashion note. Need a thrift patch maybe.

CARDINAL GIBBONS ON CHRISTIANITY.
The "Bishop Brown," who in his Communist book says that God and Christianity have caused most of the trouble in the world, is respectfully referred to these words of Cardinal Gibbons:

Religion is the only solid basis for society. Religion is to society what cement is to a modern building; it makes all parts compact and coherent. The teachings of Christ have been the basis of Christian civilization for nearly 2,000 years and continue to be the light and guide for hundreds of millions of souls. Neither Solon nor Lycurgus nor Justinian nor Napoleon nor any other framer of laws ever exerted a tithe of the influence which the gospel of Christ exercises on the human race.

Strange to say Mr. Viviani learned that the League of Nations so far as America was concerned, died last November.

TWO TYPES IN THE EARLY MORNING.

Two different types of humanity woke on Monday morning. One, and he is far in the majority, looked from the window, saw the yard filled with busy birds, the fat brown robin being the most numerous, and he hastened to dress and telephone the man to come and plow the garden. It looked well and the air and the whole earth was filled with sunshine. He had laid out in his mind just how that garden would look, how good the things gathered from it during the summer would taste and how many dollars in money he would save and how much in satisfaction he would make from that little plot of ground.

The other lazily rose, cursed his luck that he had to get up, dragged himself down stairs, damned the spring fever for his feelings and went with lagging footsteps to the task in hand.

There is a great reason why the task in hand should be made this year and chiefest is that it affords more satisfaction than any thing a family can do in this world.

JAPAN AND TEXAS.

There are 55,499,653 untitled acres in Texas. That is 56,724 square miles. The island of Nippon and adjacent islands constituting the original nation of Japan has only 61,026 square miles more than all the untitled acres in Texas. California has 11,000 more square miles in its area than all of Japan. The empire of the Mikado contains 147,750 square miles. It is a little over half as large as Texas. Had Texas the population of the United States per square mile, there would be 98,887,300 people or within 14,000,000 of the population of the United States, within the bound-

Thrift: An Interpretation

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

New York City.—That the United States is one of the most thrifty nations on earth, and that the average American is incompetent and reckless in the spending of his cash, are two disagreeable facts recently emphasized by New York banking concerns after an extensive study of thrift as it does not appear in this country.

If, as the bankers point out, thrift does not consist of hoarding resources, but in their wise use, these facts really reflect upon our native intelligence. Instead of being the most sagacious people in the world, as we have thought, it seems that almost any little European nation, like Belgium or Switzerland, can give us cards and spades in matters of economy.

Without a budget system, our Government squanders money wherever and whenever the whims of Congress direct it, without even bothering always to keep strictly itemized accounts, and we, the taxpayers, foot the bill. The bill we, the taxpayers, foot-naturedly and prodigally, and squander on appropriations for education and public health. It pays out immense sums in war pensions, but makes no provision for its superannuated civil employees. According to the bankers, no European nation would support such a slipshod financial system.

Our national waste is faithfully imitated by the individual. The majority of American homes have no budget systems. Household expenses are regulated by the whims of the family, and the bills are considered afterward—usually, long afterward. Very little preparation is made for the hazards of the future. The uneducated immigrant who dwells so numerously in our midst generally exhibits much greater skill in spending and saving his earnings than does the American-born citizen. Thousands of the former class return to Europe every year, with small fortunes to ease their declining years, while thousands of the latter enter homes for the indigent.

The following statistics, quoted from a publication of the American Bankers' Association, show how pitifully few Americans ever achieve a well-provided for old age:

"At the age of 25 we find in this country 100 men are, all strong and vigorous. They have started life physically fit and on a plane of equality."

"Ten years later, 10 are wealthy, 10 are in fair circumstances, 40 have moderate means, while 35 have saved nothing."

"At the age of 45, the number of wealthy persons has fallen to 2, 65 are merely supporting themselves, while 16 have passed into the discard. There are no longer self-supporting."

"At the age of 75, out of 100 who have lived 50 years, only 10 are dependent upon their relatives, children, or charity for support; 95 per cent of these will not have sufficient means to pay their funeral bills."

One of the reasons why Americans are less thrifty than Europeans is that they have been nourished on an old-fashioned and no longer practical theory—the theory that this country possesses abundant resources, that there is plenty for everybody, that to everyone comes the opportunity to be wealthy. This may have been true in the old days when the population was thinly scattered over only a small portion of the land, and a virgin wilderness remained for those who would claim it. Then, perhaps, it was only natural that the term thrift should be ignominiously associated with parsimony, stinginess and miserliness.

But today conditions are obviously different. We have a tremendous population in proportion to which our resources do not seem so infinitely boundless. Furthermore, these resources, as the bankers have shown, are now controlled by a few—the 5 per cent who are well to do and opportunities for the rest have become limited. Thrift may now be said to be an unrecognized necessity.

The bankers, however, are now doing what they can to see that it is recognized. They are endeavoring to have thrift courses introduced into the public schools, they are attempting by circulars and by personal advice to introduce the budget system into the American home, and they are putting out some worthy propaganda concerning the advisability of caution in spending money and making investments. The bankers do not seem to be motivated by a philanthropic feeling in this. Their business is to handle money; therefore it is to their interest to promote individual savings accounts.

Nevertheless, their arguments in favor of thrift are sound and remarkably unbiased. They point out, as has been said before, that thrift does not mean saving money so much as it means spending it wisely. They do not applaud saving at the expense of health or education or other necessities for the development of the individual. "The weekly wage, properly spent is thrift," they say, "even though not a penny may have been put into a savings account or into the purchase of a home."

"The thrifty person will spend his income to meet certain definite needs in about the following order:

"First, he will provide for himself and his family the necessities of life and such comforts and luxuries as will sustain himself and his family in the best physical condition, and will take advantage of opportunities which will increase his competence."

"Second, he will look after the health and moral welfare of himself and his family and expend such sums as will safeguard them against physical and moral decay."

"Third, he will provide against the calamities of life, namely, unemployment, accidents, sickness, old age and dependency or his family in the case of his death."

"Absolutely nothing should be spared from the first necessity. To sustain the working power of the individual and the physical welfare of the family is paramount to every other consideration. Thrift substitutes a plan, based upon foresight, and comprehensive study of one's needs, for an impulsive, ill-considered spending."

A large number of standard budgets have been worked out by economists for the benefit of those who wish to regulate their expenses by such a system. Usually, what is considered the ideal budget, prepared by the late Ellen H. Richards is used as a basis. This delegates one-fourth of the income for food; one-eighth for rent; one-seventh for household operating expenses; one-seventh for amusement. It is impossible to find one budget that will fit the needs of everybody, however; the best way is to improvise one for one's own needs, based upon expenditures in the past.

Carries of the Lone Star state. If the people of Japan can eke out an existence with their intensity of population it might be a problem for us at some future day.

How much we inveigh against luxury and yet the whole matter of luxury is quite relative. Supposing Andrew Jackson had been able to travel to the national capital in a smoking car of the kind the St. Paul road supplies on occasions for its Milwaukee trains. It would have been imperial luxury. And yet we kick like everything because the backs of the seats are so low.

GETTING HOME.

Getting home is best, I say!
Though it's fun to go away,
And there's pleasure in a trip
Overland or over sea.
Taking you to splendored new
After all the journey's through,
Makes no difference where you roam,
There's no thrill like getting home.

Maybe with a thumping heart
You look forward to the start.
And you think you'll never get
Quite enough of travel yet.
After you have journeyed far
Where the nation's wonders are,
Soon you'll find you hunger for
All the folks at home once more.
You may laugh and sing and shout
As you wander in and out,
Meeting new friends everywhere,
Seeing glories here and there,
But these joys at last will pall
And you'll wish above all
For that happiest moment when
You'll be starting home again.

Trips are glorious things to take,
Journeys everyone should make,
There are places good to be,
Much the eye of man should see.
This you'll surely learn to know—
No matter where you go.
Best thing trains can do is when
They get you back home again.

CARRYING TEACHER'S BOOKS.

The woodland nooks were loud with rooks,
The day I carried teacher's books,
I touched her fingers like a storm;
Her presence swept me like a storm;
And underneath my gingham shirt
My heart rose beating till it hurt.

Enchantment spanned the autumn land,
As I went holding teacher's hand;
And as she walked she hummed a lay,
A love song plain as words could say.
A joy of power was words could say,
I wooed a princess in a lower.

Ah, woman's art! She broke my heart,
For she had fooled me from the start.
I didn't know—how could I know?
She had a swayed up city brow;
She came that night at candle light,
And drove off hugging teacher tight!

And the others pretend they admire women. But I have noticed this: Those who hate "them" court them as long as they live, while those who admire them soon forget their name.

Who's Who Today

MAJ. GEN. J. C. HARBOUR.

Maj. Gen. James C. Harbour shortly will succeed Maj. Gen. Peyton C. March as chief of the general staff and military head of the United States army, unless the best "code" goes wrong.

Friends of March, including many high ranking officers, are anxious to see him succeed. Brig. Gen. John L. Hines, his Secretary of War, and President Harding are believed to have agreed on Harbour.

Weeks already has laid his recommendation before the president, who will send the appointment to the senate. The general, along with a list of appointments to permanent ranks of brigadier and major general as soon as congress reconvenes, will rest the responsibility for completely reorganizing the military establishment.

Congress has increased the maximum peace-time strength of the army from 200,000 to 175,000, and to meet this limit it will be necessary to radically change the plan on which the army now is organized. The new plan, which is being worked out by the general staff, will be a list of appointments to permanent ranks of brigadier and major general as soon as congress reconvenes.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

April 4, 1881.—The case of Harvey Main who is charged with stabbing Pat Collins was to appear in police court this afternoon, but Collins is still unable to appear. The will of Rev. James Doyle, once bishop of the diocese, and Archbishop Reiss of that city was given all the property and named administrator. He has refused to accept any of the bequests.

THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO

April 4, 1890.—The school board met last night but no action was taken. Matters of graduation for the 1890 class were taken up. There was an enthusiastic meeting of the Business Men's Association last night. The Milwaukee Police Department has been secured to come here and will locate in the Norcross block on River street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

April 4, 1901.—The local brewery firm of W. B. Clinton and company, the latter of the Schaefer block on Main street.—It is expected that when the Janesville and Southeastern railroad is built and in operation, trains will make the Chicago trip in two hours' time.

TEN YEARS AGO

April 4, 1911.—Fire Chief Klein has offered a reward of $25 to anybody who can tell who turned in the false alarm at No. 55 this morning. Two were turned in in the morning.—The route in the city today was faster than last year in all the wards but the fifth, where it was a little higher.

AUTOBOXYGRAPHY—III

REAL VICTUALS

Probably the most important selection of a man's life is the selection of his food from the second to the seventh year of his boyhood. From that time on, the experience of the art of boy feeding in the past six years we have arrived at some practical conclusions which I herewith draw.

As soon as a boy or child is equipped by Nature with teeth those teeth should be used for mastication, which keeps them clean and makes the food strong. At the age of two years most boys have a set of about 16 teeth—eight incisors, four canines and four molars—and that is ample material for the mastication of real victuals. It is a great mistake, based on ancient ideas of infant feeding, to keep the diet of a youngster restricted to liquids and soft solids supposedly "easily digested" substitutes for real victuals. A great many cases of digestive difficulty enduring for many years occur from such ill-advised mastication of a boy's food. Place it that a child is a sickly proposition if you will, but for goodness' sake don't train a boy to be afraid of his victuals.

For instance, some sanitarian diet fanatics teach that Nature's most wonderful food, sugar, is rank poison for children. Stuff and nonsense. Those sanitarians who teach that sugar is rank poison and meet a few real boys. I tell you sugar is one of the most nutritious, most quickly available (quickly digested), absorbed and utilized for energy and most essential food elements in the diet of infants and young children. Mother's milk is more than half sugar, so far as its nutritive elements are concerned. The sanitarian food specialists may be right there with the diet for invalids, but I tell you again they are terribly mistaken when they preach no sugar, eat candy or no sweets for young children.

Dad insists on keeping on our table a big bowl of the brownest, crudest grade of brown sugar there is, and he has never heard of anything I used half a spoonful or six spoonfuls on my entire butter or omelette or on my bread and butter. He prefers the crude brown sugar to the refined white sugar because the brown contains about 200 times as much mineral matter as the white granulated sugar, and the mineral matter is sent to the feet and makes them good. I tell you, I'm always ready to line up alongside any poor little kid

Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All queries are sent direct to the inquiry.)

Q. What should silver be packed in to prevent tarnishing? J. H.

A. We suggest that you use cotton flannel. The sweaters use red, gray, or green cotton flannel, but never white, because the chemical that has bleached the white cotton flannel often causes the silver to darken. If the drawer, chest or box in which the silver is stored contains a few pieces of gum camphor, the tarnish will not form so soon.

Q. Which is the greatest river in the world? L. C. M.

A. The Amazon is the greatest river in the world, being said to contain one-tenth of all the running water on the globe.

Q. In what country was golf first played? F. J. H.

A. There is much evidence to show that the game is of Dutch origin. From a royal letter of James VI of Scotland (James I of England) who forbade the importation of golf, we learn that the game was used in the game, and from pictorial representation of the game which are chiefly Dutch, the evidence is in support of the above assumption. It was introduced into Scotland from the middle of the fifteenth century.

Q. How may oil paintings be cleaned? I. W. T.

A. To clean an oil painting, wash the surface gently with clear, warm water. Use a soft cloth or fine sponge; let dry, and rub gently with a soft flannel cloth moistened with pure olive oil. The water softens the accumulated grime, dust, and the oil assists in wiping it away.

Q. Were passports necessary before the world war? A. A.

A. The state department says that before the world war it was necessary to have a passport for entrance into Russia, and for departure from Turkey, Germany and Austria. These were practically all the countries observed such enforcement.

Q. How many inches of unmelting snow are required to make an inch of water? R. C.

A. The custom of the weather bureau, when conditions are not favorable for melting snowfall, is to assume a ratio of one to 10 between the melted and unmelting snow. That is, one inch of unmelting snow will make a tenth of an inch of water. This, of course, is not a constant ratio, as the density of the snow varies greatly at different periods of the year and for different snowfalls.

Q. How can I obtain meal worms for the bait? J. L.

A. Meal worms may be obtained at any bird store, or may be propagated at home, by placing some corn meal in a box, with a few meal worms. During the warm weather meal worms will breed in the corn meal quite rapidly.

Q. How many city and rural mail carriers are there? J. W. B.

A. The postoffice department says that for the year ending June 30, 1920, there were 35,245 city carriers and 43,322 rural carriers.

Q. Will dissolving a yeast cake in boiling water impair its food value? R. H.

A. The bureau of chemistry says that dissolving a yeast cake in boiling water will not spoil it, and that it will retain its food value. The yeast cake is the Jewish holiday celebrating the landing down of the commandments? M. L. D.

A. The Jewish religious holiday celebrating the landing down of the commandments is known as the Feast of Weeks. It occurs on June 6 and 7 of each year.

Q. What is the meaning of a mezzanine floor? J. C. G.

A. "The mezzanine floor" is a mezzanine floor, a floor between two floors spaced at regular distance. For instance, in a hotel, frequently, half way between the lobby floor and the first floor to be occupied by rooms for guests, is an additional floor, sometimes given over to use as a ballroom, or for business purposes.

Superior.—Navigation in Superior.—Duluth harbor shows every indication of opening sooner than anticipated by marine men. The steamer Peter Robb, which has been in dry dock all winter at the yards of the Superior Shipbuilding company, is fitted out and according to Capt. William Landon, the boat will make an effort this week to plow through the ice remaining in the local harbor. The Robb will go to Port Williams to take on a cargo of grain for the lower lake.

They Still Get as Drunk as Ever in Escanaba

(By Associated Press.)

Escanaba, Mich.—The eighth annual "do not drink" campaign, which was inaugurated by the police department, has been a success. The records show that more plain drunks were arrested during the month of March than ever before. An average of one man a day was arrested and fined or sent to jail for being drunk.

March and April have always been heavy months for us, said one officer. "The weatherman coming in from their winters work in the woods with a pocketful of money spend it for drinks. At the rate they are

"Or please don't come to see me any more."

He waited, his eyes steadily on her. "No you sure enough mean that. My heart's sick. She knew she had gone too far, but she was too imperious to draw back.

"I'm sorry. You're leaving me no option. I'm not a yellow dog. Sometimes I'm not a man. I'm going to do what I think is right."

"Of course," she responded lightly. "If our ideas of what that is differ."

"They do."

"It's because we've been brought up differently. I suppose."

He smiled at a stilted little yawn behind her hand.

"You've said it. He gave it to her straight from the shoulder. "All your life you've been pampered. When you wanted a thing all you had to do was reach out a hand for it. Folks were born to wait on you, by your way of it. You're a spoiled kid. You keep these manicured, fat-fingered New York ladies stepping. Good enough. Be as high-heeled as you're a mind to. I'll step some too for you—when you smile at me right. But it's time to serve notice that in my country folks grow up man-size. You ask me to climb up the side of a house to pick up a bit of ribbon from under the eaves, and reckon I'll take a whirl at it. But you ask me to turn my back on a friend, and I've got to say, 'Nothin' doin'." And if you was just a few years younger I'd advise you to put you in your room and feed your bread and water for askin' it."

The angry color poured into her cheeks. She clenched her hands till the nails bit her palms. "I think you're the most hateful man I ever met," she cried passionately.

His easy smile faded. "Oh, no, you don't. You just think you think it. Now, I'm going to light a shuck. I'll be sayin' good-bye, Miss Beatrice, until you send for me."

"And that will be never," she flung at him.

He rose, bowed, and walked out of the room.

The street door closed behind him. Beatrice but her lip to keep from breaking down before she reached her room.

CHAPTER XIX
A Lady Wears a Ring

Clarence Bromfield got the shock of his life that evening. Beatrice proposed to him. It was at the Robinson dinner-dance, in the Palm Room, within sight but not within hearing of a dozen other guests.

She announced it with a smile, and with occasional smiles and ripples of laughter intended to deceive the others present, but her heart was pounding sixty miles an hour. She had never been so nervous in her life.

He smiled at her, but his eyes were fixed on some object which he could not see. Johnnie worried about him.

The evening of the day the Runt heard of the engagement, he told his friend about it while Kitty was in the kitchen.

"Miss Beatrice she wears a new ring," he said by way of breaking the news.

Clay turned his head slowly and looked at Johnnie. He waited without speaking.

"I heard it today from one of the help. Then I sent it on her finger," the little man went on reluctantly.

"Bromfield?" asked Clay.

"Yep. That's the name."

"What ring was on the left hand?"

"Yep."

Dinner Stories

"I suppose you marry a lot of clopping couples, squire. Quite a few?"

"Yes; I get $5 for marryin' each couple an' they come in such darned haste I allow 'em $10 more for speedin'."

"Helen, I really cannot permit you to read novels on the Sabbath."

"But, grandma, this one is all right. It's about a girl who was engaged to three Episcopal clergymen all at once."

"We had a wedding out on Long Beach last night, and the bride all flustered on account of the delay. Sammy explained one morning."

"What caused the delay?"

"We had to telephone clear down to a main street pool room to find the minister," was the calm reply.

"I say," protested the talkative swain, interrupted in the midst of tender conversation by the impatient voice of third party, "you're on a busy wire."

"Is that all?" rasped the impatient voice. "I thought I'd landed in a vat of soft soap."

"I know where we can buy a few real cocktails before dinner."

"Yes, but the way prices are now, if we buy the cocktails we won't be able to buy the dinner."

"By Jove, Milly, you look topping tonight, but you're a fearful lot of frocks cost me these days!"

"Gilbert, dearest, what does money matter when it's a case of making you happy?"

TURN SPARK BACK—YARD GROWN INTO "KITCHEN GARDEN"

(First day of "Backyard Gardening")

No matter how much space you have to devote to a garden—whether it's two or three acres, or only a small plot four by five feet—there is a garden. A garden means a whole lot; it always does to the writer, anyway. The care of it is a pleasant pastime for spare vacation moments. Try not to waste the garden, but a large tree, first, because the shade is good for the plants, and second, the tree absorbs too much plant food in the soil.

In choosing the plot of ground to remember that plants thrive best in rich, dark, nutritious soil. Break as much of the big clods as possible. Clear the ground of all sticks and stones, tin cans, or other rubbish. Pile all of it neatly to one side and at your earliest convenience carry it away.

OF THE UNITED STATES

April's reputation is not limited to being the month of spring rains. It is the great War Month of the United States.

Take out your history. Open up to the Battle of Lexington, the first of the Revolutionary War hostilities. Started on April 19, 1775, didn't it?

Now look up the date of the Battle of Fort Sumter, the first of the Civil War. April 12, 1861, isn't it?

You'll also find that the United States declared war with Spain on April 22, 1898. This opened the Spanish-American War.

Then along came our recent World War. The United States entered it on April 6, 1917.

And those facts are why this month is the War Month of the United States.

DOLLAR IDEAS

Minicase Manufacturing

When the writer was in school he earned a good deal of his pocket money by making and selling bottles of minicase to his student friends and his neighbors.

The minicase, from which the minicase was made, consisted of three ounces of soft water, one ounce of gum arabic, and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. The last two were purchased at the drug store, and the first was always to be had at home. All three were dumped into a tin vessel, which was set on the stove. As the solution heated, it was stirred slowly with a stick until thoroughly mixed. Then it was poured into small one-ounce bottles which were also bought from the drugstore. Corked and cooled, the bottles were then ready for sale.

The formula suggested makes about four one-ounce bottles. It may be increased proportionately and greater quantities made. A one-ounce bottle will sell for 8 or 10 cents, and the profits from each, while not extremely large, are gratifying.

Notice of Judicial, State and County Superintendent Election

OFFICE OF COUNTY CLERK, March 21, 1921.

Notice is hereby given that a Judicial, State and County Superintendent election to be held in the several towns, villages and election precincts in the County of Rock, on the first Tuesday of April, A. D. 1921, being the 5th day of said month, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The name of the candidate for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to this office, are given opposite the title of the office and under the appropriate designation, each in its proper column.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters: A voter upon entering the polling place, and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk, which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment, and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for. If a voter wishes to vote for some of the candidates of different political parties, he should make a cross mark under the name of each candidate, desiring to vote for, or at any place within the space in which the name is printed. If he wishes to vote for a person for a certain office, whose name is not on the ballot, he must write the name in the blank space under the printed name of the candidate for the office. In voting for candidates for county judge or superintendent of schools place a cross at the right of the names for whom you wish to vote, but vote for only one. The ballot should not be marked in any other manner.

If the ballot is spoiled it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memoranda to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter. After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed endorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector. In charge of the ballot box and hand him his ballot to be placed in the box and pass out of the booth or compartment. A voter who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking the same, to be chosen by the voter, and it he declares that he is totally blind he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath, in his discretion, as to such person's disability. The party designations and candidates for the different offices are, for example, as follows:

Where Do We Go From Here?

There is no money in sitting idly by and talking hard luck.
Prosperity is permanently planted in Janesville and environs

Janesville's diversified industries, its tremendous activities, and the constant demand for Janesville Products make a busy, hustling community where money is made and spent constantly.

In addition to Janesville and immediate territory, The Gazette is developing for its advertisers the rich territory outlined in the map above and also the territory as far west as Mineral Point, not shown on this map. There are 80,000 people in this territory, all within shopping distance of Janesville.

Last week the Gazette added 150 new subscribers on its list at Delavan. This is indicative of the spirit of progress which actuates the Gazette and which makes advertising columns daily more valuable.

The only way to renew prosperity is for the merchant to go after the dollars in the hands of the people who have the dollars—80,000 of them in The Gazette territory.

Gazette advertising behind properly priced articles is the way to where they should go. There is no money in sitting idly by talking hard luck.

AND CLOSING MARKETS

GRAIN	STOCK LIST

CHICAGO.	New York Stock List.
Chicago Review. Ciliceno.—Wheat prices developed a little strength today as a result of buying orders and optimistic views that a rally was due. Besides, bearish factors had been discounted and that a rally was due. Besides, the market was buoyed up by news in evidence. Advances, however, led to increased selling pressure, and there was a decline in some cases toward Saturday's finish. Opening quotations, which varied from un- changed to 1¢ higher with May $1.87 and July $1.91 were followed by moderate gains all around and then by a general suc- cessive advance in the west and southwest had a bearish influence, which was somewhat counterbal- anced by liberal buying in foreign business in both wheat and flour. The close was unsettled, 1½¢ net low- er to 1¢ like August, with May $1.83 and July $1.86. so that gains were more than wiped out.

Later the market was firmer owing to persistent rural buying in small lots. The close was steady at 41¢, the same as Saturday's finish to 5¢, or, with May 53% advanced.

Oats were governed chiefly by the country demand, starting 34¢ at 10 a. m. to 34¢ 1/4 advance, July 33% at 10 a. m. and then hardened a little, but were seen to be firm.

Higher quotations on hogs had only a transient dullish effect on poultry.

Wall Street Review.
New York.—Shorts made a concerted attack against steels at today's stock market session, evidently basing their operations on increasing signs of impending price and wage readjustments. Crucible was weakest, losing 2½ and Bethlehem, Re-

United States Steel Corp. reported an average of one point. Early grades in molten and coils were lost when selling of asphalt common and preferred, Atlantic City and Royal Dutch resulted in losses of 1 1/2 to 5 cents. American International Guaranty Co., Sumatra, Karstetter preferred and Johnson, partialties, yielded 3 to 2

The stock market again lacked definite tendencies at the opening of today's session, although advances were in excess of declines. Oils and motors overshadowed the general list, Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, Invincible Oil and Studebaker rising 1 to 1½ points in the first few transactions, United States Rubber, American Hide and Leather preferred and Bethlehem also were firm. An easier market was shown by Chrysler, Dayton, Duff, General Electric, General Motors, Westinghouse, and Steelton.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Written and Publication Authorized by The Young Men's Business Club, and paid for by them at the rate of 85c per inch.

Tomorrow every man and woman who has the future of Janesville at heart will go to the polls and cast his or her ballot for the men whom they think best fitted to conduct the city's affairs for the next two years. It is safe to presume that everyone interested is familiar with the situation which has arisen in the campaign.

Mayor Welsh, who has served two years, seeks re-election at the request of those who believe he has conducted the affairs of the city in a business-like manner, making progress which will result in benefits to all. His opponent has intimated that taxes are too high and that improvements should be curtailed. In other words he has looked at the dollar in hand rather than at the benefits the taxpayers will receive if Janesville is allowed to put herself in shape to meet the requirements of a growing and prosperous industrial city now.

If the business men could alone vote today for the man who would assure them safety in the future through his efforts to make improvements which would benefit us all, Mayor Welsh would be swung into office by a big majority. They know that Janesville, alive and hustling, means better business and better conditions for all. They fully realize that Janesville, settled back into a complacent slump, spells stagnation of business. They are willing to pay their share of the improvements if they can be assured that it will prove a good investment.

If those who consider taxes merely as something that has to be taken from them as a contribution and do not take into consideration that improvements mean greater property values and better business opportunities, should be allowed to vote in a group, Mayor Welsh would not be returned to office. The majority of the voters are willing to force the effort to have Janesville keep its forward stride.

Janesville today is considered by social workers to have made as good progress in cleaning up vice conditions as any city of the state. Miss Marthy Riley, state social service worker, who made a recent survey in the city, wrote Chief Morrissey a letter stating that Janesville was freer from immorality and vice than the average city in the state. She complimented the police on the operation given her. Anyone familiar with former conditions in the city will agree that the present police department has done a great deal toward wiping out evils which had existed here for years. Mothers of Janesville can feel more secure for their sons and daughters under the present regime than they could when the streets and public places were thronged with disreputable characters. This in itself should be a most pulling appeal to mothers to get out and vote for a man who has insisted that Janesville be made safe for their children. Mayor Welsh cannot overcome every obstacle, but he has shown his willingness to put the ban on immorality.

The Young Men's Business club is not centering its activities in this campaign upon any one man. It has before stated that it desires to get back of men and institutions that will build up the city. It feels this is a critical time in city affairs. It lends its support to E. J. Sartell for return to the office of city clerk because it feels he has shown excellent judgment and ability in conducting the business of his office. He has proven he can handle the job. He has gotten well into the swing of the work and should be given the opportunity to continue. He is courteous and accommodating. He has the records of the city in such shape that he can turn to anything pertaining to any matter which comes to his attention and handle it without delay.

Mr. Sartell served his country in the war as a member of Company M. The least the citizens of Janesville can do is to show their appreciation of his services both at home and abroad.

The club stands for the aldermen seeking office who will put their shoulders to the wheel in the effort to get the city in the foreground of progress. With a mayor who has been tried out and not found wanting in time of stress; with a city clerk competent to keep his office in shape; and with a council that will be safe and sane in spending the city's money and at the same time be broad enough to build for the future, taxpayers need not fear a poor return on any investment they will be called upon to make in support of the commonwealth.

Do not be a slacker tomorrow! Get out and vote for the man you believe is best fitted to conduct the office he is seeking. Forget the petty mud-slinging that has been indulged in. Look at the situation in a broad-minded, business-like way.

Can we afford to "Swap horses in the middle of the stream?"

All AMERICAN citizens who are eligible to vote, even though they are not registered, can be sworn in at the polls on election day.
